Most people – Westerners and Asians alike – think Taiwan is all overcrowded cities and smoke spewing factories, a perception that stems from its astonishing economic success of recent times.

Fortunately, there is a much more to Taiwan than science parks, clogged up highways and the pollution-choked western coast.

Step out of the cities and you will quickly discover Taiwan's most defining feature – a staggering network of magnificent mountains by far the highest and most rugged in Northeast Asia, yet almost completely unknown to outsiders.

The beautiful trails, historic suspension bridges, stunning vistas, cascading waterfalls, thousand year old ancient forests and awesome marbled walled gorges that accompany these mountains provide a world class training environment.

insight into Taiwan's historic and cultural background.

With a strong focus on experiential hands on learning, participants are challenged to improve all facets of teambuilding in a setting that provides real lasting results.

Whether you are looking to organize an executive management retreat or welcome new recruits to the company, why not treat them to a challenging and exciting program that incorporates the perfect balance of teambuilding, company specific learning and outdoor adventure.

Of course, you could also just go back to using that old stuffy meeting room in some anonymous downtown hotel and wonder why your employees aren't responding.

Kick start your corporate training in one of the most beautiful settings in the world and discover what a lot of people don't know – Taiwan Rocks!
